Young Davy

Davy Crockett was born on August 17, 1787, in Greene County, Tennessee. In 1787 America was a new nation. Most of the territory was a wilderness¹.

Davy Crockett was born in the wilderness. His father, John Crockett, was an Irish immigrant². He fought in the American Revolution. He was a very courageous³ man.

Davy had a difficult childhood⁴. His family was poor. When he was twelve years old, his father said, "Davy, our family doesn't have any money. You must go to work as a cattle herder⁵."

"All right, father," said Davy. "I'm happy to help the family!"

Davy travelled four hundred miles on foot. He took cattle from Tennessee to other places. When he finished his work, he was far from home. He was lost⁶! Davy walked 400 miles. When he returned home, he was very tired.

Davy gave his father the money he made. His father was happy and said, "Thank you, Davy! Now we have some money for the winter months."

"I can do it again to help the family," Davy answered.

The years passed. Davy went to school when he had time. He spent most of his time hunting in the forest. He was the best shooter¹ and hunter² in Tennessee. He entered many shooting competitions³ and won them all. He called his rifle "Old Betsy."

For years Davy hunted bears and other wild animals. He was a trapper⁴. Once he hunted one hundred bears in six months!

It was dangerous⁵ to hunt bears but Davy was very courageous and strong. He knew the forest well. The Indians were his good friends. He ran fast and was a strong fighter. He fought with the wild cats of the mountains.

Some people said that one day Davy saw a raccoon in a tree. He wanted to shoot it but the raccoon saw him and said, "Wait a minute! Are you Davy Crockett?"

Davy answered, "Yes, I am!"

The raccoon answered, "Then don't shoot! I'll come down from the tree." And the raccoon came down from the tree!

veryone liked Davy Crockett. He was always happy, with a big smile. He was honest and always helped others.

Davy was a tall man. He wore a coonskin cap, buckskin trousers and a buckskin jacket. He always carried his long rifle, "Old Betsy."

In 1806 Davy married Polly Finley. She was a school teacher.

They had two sons and a daughter: John, Joseph and Judith.

After a few years, the Crockett family moved into the Tennessee hills. The Tennessee hills were near hostile¹ Indian country.

In 1812 the war between the United States and Britain began. The Mohawk and Creek Indians fought with the British against the Americans. The American General Andrew Jackson organized a small army. He wanted to fight the Creek Indians and the British.

Davy fought with this army. He was a scout¹ because he knew the territory² well. His work as a scout was very important. Davy travelled across Tennessee, the Mississippi Territory, Florida and Louisiana with General Jackson's army. The Battle of New Orleans was a big victory for General Jackson and the Americans. The war ended in 1814.

The British lost the war. The Indians lost their territories and went away. New American families settled³ in the Tennessee hills.

At the end of the war Davy returned home to his family. Unfortunately, his wife Polly died. Life was again difficult for Davy. He worked as a trapper and took care of his three children.

After some time, Davy met Meg Mackinack. Meg's father was an American trapper. Her mother was a Cherokee Indian. Davy fell in love and married her. They had twins⁴. Hunters and Trappers Life in the American wilderness was exciting but it was not easy. There were wild animals, hostile Indians, no roads and no good maps.

Only strong, courageous men and women lived in the wilderness. These people were very independent. They were free spirits¹. Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie (who you will read about later in the story) were hunters and trappers. They hunted wild animals for food and for their furs. Davy hunted bears and wild cats. Both were very dangerous animals.

Hunters and trappers had a difficult life. They lived alone in the high mountains for many months. Often it snowed and it was very cold. They did not have a home. They lived in a cave or in a small hut². They hunted many animals: bears, wild cats, alligators, buffalo³, beavers and others. Then they sold the furs at a trading post⁴. Trappers made good money by selling furs. Indians often worked as trappers too.

Davy Enters Politics

Davy and his big family wanted to live in Lawrenceburg, Tennessee. Davy bought a covered wagon ¹. He and his family put all of their things inside the wagon: chairs, tables, beds, clothing and many other things. Four strong horses pulled the big wagon. Davy and his wife sat in the front. The five children were inside the wagon.

After travelling in the forests and mountains, they arrived in Lawrenceburg. This was their new home. Davy opened a mill ². He was a hard worker. His neighbours liked him. Everybody in Lawrenceburg liked him.

He became a representative ³ of the town government. He was

1. covered wagon :

2. mill : 磨坊。

3. representative : 代表。

"An American Hero"

very popular. People liked listening to his stories about hunting bears and about the War of 1812. They admired his honesty and courage.

Davy was different from other politicians¹. His speeches were never boring². His message was clear. He spoke to the people in simple language. He dressed like them too. He always wore his coonskin cap and his buckskin trousers and jacket.

One day at an important meeting he didn't know what to say. So he looked at the people and said, "Today, I am like a man trying to drink water from an empty barrel³! I'll tell you a funny story and then we can go home!"

Davy soon became a representative of the government of Tennessee. Now he was in politics. He helped his people in many ways.

At first, many politicians laughed at Davy because he never wore a suit⁴. After some time, these politicians admired and respected him. Davy was an honest man. Everyone believed what he said.

His buckskin jacket had two big pockets. In his right pocket Davy had a bottle of whisky. When he met his friends, he gave them some whisky! In those days, it was common to give some whisky to friends.

Texas!

In 1835 the Crockett family left Tennessee. They put all their things in a big covered wagon and they travelled for many days. They finally arrived in Texas.

At that time, Texas belonged to ¹ Mexico. At first, the Mexican Government was happy with the American settlers. They cultivated ² the land.

Many settlers went to Texas because land was very cheap. With a little money, a settler bought a lot of land. More and more Americans went to Texas. There were about 20,000 American settlers in eastern Texas. There were only 5,000 Mexicans! The Mexican Government did not like this. There were too many Americans!

Mexico decided to close its borders ³. The American settlers were very angry.

In 1834, the Mexican General Santa Anna became the dictator ⁴

1. belonged to : 属于。

2. cultivated : 耕种。

3. borders : 边界。

4. dictator : 独裁者。

of Mexico. He was a cruel man. He sent his soldiers to the Mexican border. He did not want American settlers to enter Mexico.

By 1834, there were more than 30,000 Americans living in Texas. They wanted Texas to be an independent American state! They did not want to live under a cruel Mexican dictator.¹

Davy and his family now lived in Texas. They were happy in their new home. They wanted the independence of Texas, too.

One day Davy heard that the Mexicans wanted to attack Fort Alamo. The Alamo was a Spanish church and fort near San Antonio, in western Texas. There were Texans and American soldiers at Fort Alamo. There were also women and children at the fort. War was in the air²! Davy knew he must fight for the independence of Texas.

The American Frontier

In the 18th century America was a very young nation. Only small parts of the East were settled by white people.

On the American continent there were forests, lakes, rivers, valleys, tall mountains and deserts. But there were very few people. American Indians lived on this enormous² continent.

Every year thousands of white settlers explored³ the American frontier. These settlers moved from the East to the West in their covered wagons.

Some settled near the rivers, others in the valleys.

Most of them were farmers. Some were cowboys with their cattle. Towns and cities grew quickly.

Jim Bowie and the Bowie Knife

Jim Bowie was a great American adventurer and hero. He was born in 1796 in Kentucky. When he was 6 years old, his family went to live in Louisiana.

When Jim was 18 years old, he hunted bears and alligators! He also captured wild horses. He was a tall, strong man. He loved adventures and danger. Jim Bowie was never afraid of anything.

In 1831 Jim Bowie settled in Texas. He bought some land near San Antonio. He married the Vice-Governor's daughter, Maria. He and his family loved Texas. At the Alamo, Bowie fought for the independence of his new home, Texas.

He and his brother invented the famous Bowie knife. It was built in a special way to protect the hand. It was an excellent knife for hunting and fighting. This knife became very popular in the United States and Britain. Every pioneer¹ and cowboy had a Bowie knife. It is still used today.

The Red Flag¹

ne morning a messenger arrived. "I have a message from General Fannin: He is very sorry. He cannot send any soldiers. You must leave the Alamo now. General Santa Anna is near. You are all in danger."

"We don't want to leave the Alamo," said Jim Bowie. "We want to fight for the independence of Texas. How many soldiers has General Santa Anna got?"

"He's got about 4,000 soldiers!" said the messenger.

Colonel Bowie looked at Colonel Travis. "We must speak to our men," said Colonel Travis. "Yes," said Bowie, "we must speak to them."

Colonel Travis called his 187 men. He said sadly, "General Santa Anna is coming to attack us. He has about 4,000 soldiers and lots of ammunition². We have only 187 men and little

Then he marked a line on the ground with his sword¹. "Those who want to fight for the independence of Texas, cross this line! The others can leave the fort and go home."

There was a very long silence. Davy thought about his wife and his five children. Then he thought about the independence of Texas and the American settlers. He thought about a new American state: Texas!

The Red Flag

All the men crossed the line. These men wanted to defend the Alamo. These men wanted an independent Texas.

On February 23, 1836, General Santa Anna and his army arrived. He sent a messenger to the Alamo. He wanted the people in the Alamo to leave. The men in the Alamo answered with a cannon shot! They did not want to leave. They did not want to return to the United States. General Santa Anna was furious. He showed a red flag. The red flag meant: No Prisoners! He wanted to kill everyone in the fort!

On February 24, 1836, General Santa Anna's army attacked the Alamo. The Mexicans had an enormous cannon. It shot a cannon ball that damaged a wall of the fort.

Davy said, "We must destroy that cannon. It can destroy the walls of our fort."

That night, Davy and Jim Bowie left the fort. They went to the Mexican camp. Everyone in the camp was sleeping. Davy and Jim silently passed behind the two Mexican guards. They put mud ¹ and stones ² in the enormous cannon. Then they returned to the Alamo.

The next morning, the Mexican army used the cannon. It exploded ³! The Mexicans were very surprised. Their enormous cannon was destroyed.

The men in the Alamo killed many Mexican soldiers. The Mexican army attacked many times during the day. But the Texans and the American army defended the Alamo.

The Massacre¹

The days passed. The battle continued. There was little food and ammunition. The men in the Alamo fought courageously. Nothing stopped them!

After twelve days of fighting, General Santa Anna sent all of his army to attack the fort. On March 6, at 5 a.m., the Mexican bugles² played the "Deguello." The "Deguello" was a war song. It meant "Death for everyone." The women and children at the fort were tired and afraid. The situation was desperate³.

The men at the Alamo heard the "Deguello." They understood the message. General Santa Anna's army attacked the fort from all sides. It was a terrible battle. Everyone was shooting. Cannon balls were flying. A lot of men were injured⁴. Some men were

The third time, the Mexicans entered the fort. They killed many people: men, women and children. It was a massacre!

Jim Bowie was a great fighter. He was a strong man and he was never afraid. He fought with his famous Bowie knife. He killed many Mexican soldiers. At the end of the day, three Mexican soldiers killed Jim Bowie.

Davy and the other men fought until the end. They killed many enemy soldiers. It was a desperate battle. Four Mexican soldiers killed Davy with a long knife. The tall, courageous trapper fell to the ground!

Only two women and two children were alive¹ after the massacre. But General Santa Anna did not kill them. These women and children returned home.

The Mexicans burnt the bodies of the dead people.

It was a big victory for General Santa Anna. He lost 1,544 men at the Alamo.
